

Annals of Loch Cé

The "Annals of Loch Cé" (Key), from an island in Lough Key, Roscommon, are written in Irish, and treat chiefly of Ireland (1014 to 1636)

LC1373.2 - William Dalton, the sheriff of Midhe, was slain by the Cenel-Fiachaidh, and by O'Maelechlainn.

LC1386.3 - Niall, son of Cucocriche Og Mac Eochagain, was killed by the Daltons on the seventeenth of the kalends of May; and this man was well fitted to be chieftain over his own country.

LC1398.10 - Maurice, son of Piers Dalton, occisus est by Muirchertach Og Mac Eochagain, and by Brian, the son of O'Conchobhair Failghe.

LC1401.4 - Muirchertach Og, son of Muirchertadh Mor MacEochagain, was killed on the third of the nones of October, in Belatha-Impir, with one cast of a spear, by Garrett son of Robert Dalton, in a nocturnal encounter, after he had sent away his people on an incursion into the Brenadh of Muintir-Gillgan.

LC1403.15 - John Buidhe, son of Seoinin Burk, occisus est by the Clann-maicne-Eoghain O'Cellaigh, and by the sons of Hubert Dalton.

LC1405.9 - Miles Dalton was slain by the Daltons, and by the sons of Hubert Dalton.

LC1408.10 - Miles Dalton occisus est a fratre suo; and his castle was afterwards broken down by the descendants of Cathal O'Ferghail.

LC1487.9 - The Dalton, i.e. Edmond, son of Piers, died.

Manuscript held by the Royal Irish Academy, Dublin.

Source: Copied from the Internet